Dear Year 13 Parents/Guardians,

I am writing to you regarding the final few weeks of teaching for our Year 13 students before they begin their study leave for the external examinations.

As the start of study leave approaches on 7th May we want to emphasise the critical importance of maintaining full attendance in all scheduled lessons and directed study sessions until this date.

The remaining lessons are not merely revision sessions; they are strategically planned to provide essential final input, targeted revision on common examination errors, and opportunities for students to clarify any remaining uncertainties directly with their subject teachers. These sessions are vital for consolidating knowledge and optimising performance in the upcoming examinations.

We strongly encourage you to ensure your child attends all of their scheduled lessons. Absence during this period can mean missing out on key examination strategies, last-minute subject-specific advice, and crucial final checks before the examinations begin.

Teachers will be using this time to:

- Address specific areas of weakness identified in recent mock examinations.
- Focus on higher-level examination questions and techniques..
- Confirm revision schedules and final support sessions and interventions

Your support in reinforcing the importance of full engagement and attendance during this final teaching block is highly appreciated. It will significantly contribute to your child's confidence and success as they transition to the examination period.

Thank you for your continued support.

Yours sincerely,

Tina Stojko
Director of Sixth Form
